The Fourth at Newport.

Fourth of July dawned wet and inglorious at Newport and continued in that state till about 2 p. m., and most of the race events were cancelled. The races the Park were postponed till Thursday, and the time and had their games in the afternoon. The Montpelier Grocers' Clerks arrived on Monday as planned. The tug of war was won by Newport and everyone is wondering what the winners did with the prize. The Newport band and the small boys contributed most to the celebration. Considering that the horse racing was postponed till Thursday, the day following the fourth, a good crowd was at the park and the good races were contested. The 2.35 was the most bitterly fought of all and seven heats were trotted in this race before a conclusion was brought about. Now are the heats and winners in each heat:

The Celebration at Irasburg.

The ringing of bells and firing of cannon cheered in our national holiday here with unusual interest. Although the severe rain in the morning prevented the usual immense crowd for which Irasburg has always been noted at past celebrations, a goodly number attended in the morning, and by afternoon a good crowd had gathered. Everything had been planned for a successful day's entertainment and was carried out as far as possible, considering the inclemency of the weather. One of the best processions of horribles ever had here was planned for the morning parade, but nearly all went home thinking it would be impossible to be out, but about 2 o'clock p. m. a parade of marshals, state ladies, coaching rigs and horribles appeared. Mrs. John Austin representing Queen Victoria, took first prize; Miss Blanche Winget took second prize, showing a pretty rig in red and white; Archie Mercer received third prize in horribles. Mention should be made of the girls who acted as "State Ladies," and also "Uncle Sam." After this followed the races, prizes being awarded as follows: Foot race, first prize won by Nelson Aiken; second prize by H. W. Smith; third prize C. M. Baldwin. In the wheelbarrow race, Oliver Metcalf won first prize and C. M. Baldwin received second prize. The tug of war between Irasburg vs. Co. L resulted in a victory for Irasburg. Then followed the ball game between Irasburg and Barton resulting in a score of 6 to 2 in favor of Barton. Following is the score:

Co. L. V. N. G., who are stationed at Newport, arrived on the afternoon of July 3 and camped on the common. Much interest was manifest in their presence, work, and behavior. The drum corps made their presence known in their usual pleasing and creditable manner. The fire works were unusually good and witnessed by a large number of people; and last but not least we wish to speak of the Irasburg Cornet Band, who deserve much credit for their work and the appearance in their new uniforms. They discoursed excellent music during the day and evening. The band is making fine progress under the leadership of Professor Bullard, and we bespeak for them a successful future. Thus another Fourth has passed without accident as far as has been learned.

Although two games were on the schedule for Barton baseball team July 4th the morning game was cancelled on account of the rain. In the afternoon however the weather lightened and a large audience at Irasburg witnessed one of the best games of the season.
